Most important platform for the international logistics industry Germany's Minister of Transport Patrick Schnieder opens transport logistic

May 22, 2025

- Official opening on the first day of the fair at 11:00 in the forum of Hall A3
- 15 percent more exhibitors
- 65 percent international exhibitors

Logistics is at the heart of current transformation processes – from global supply chains to digitalization and decarbonization. transport logistic 2025 addresses these topics and brings market participants from all over the world together in Munich. The trade fair will be officially opened at 11:00 on Monday, June 2 in the forum of Hall A3 by Germany's Minister of Transport Patrick Schnieder and Messe München CEO Stefan Rummel.

Strong growth and high level of international participation

With around 2,670 exhibitors from more than 70 countries, the trade fair is setting new records. Of these, 1,755 companies are from abroad – a share of 65 percent. Compared to 2023, that's an increase of 15 percent. The exhibition space has been expanded to 150,000 m<sup>2</sup>, including two new halls. Around 80,000 trade visitors are expected to attend.

“transport logistic makes visible what often remains invisible in everyday life: Logistics is far more than trucks on the highway, it is the basis for the economy to function,” explains Stefan Rummel, CEO of Messe München. “The high number of international exhibitors underscores the role of transport logistic as the world's leading platform for the logistics industry. We are therefore all the more pleased that Germany's Minister of Transport is using the trade fair for his
